3. Read the text and complete the table

Polar bears are 90 -130 kg mammals. They are 1,5 -2 meters tall. You can see them in North and South Poles. They have small ears and round faces but strong paws. They are carnivore. They can easily hunt fish and seals because they can swim. They are very strong. They also can hunt some big animals like wolves and foxes. They are endangered animals because people hunt them for their fur. Their fur is valuable and very expensive. On the other hand, they are becoming extinct because of global warming. It rises the average temperature of the poles and destroys their habitat
